Parnell Signs Tick Eradication Measure

$175,000 Given By State To Be Used In Eradication Work

Work To Begin In This County On Monday March 20

H. B. ALDRIDGE HERE

Many New Vats Are Built In Several Sections of County

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor Parnell Wednesday signed two budget committee bills carrying aggregate appropriations of $175,000 for tick eradication which will be met by funds from the federal government.

About fifteen counties in south Arkansas are expected to receive benefit from the eradication work.

Systematic dipping work will start in Hempstead county on next Monday, March 16. A number of old vats have been repaired for the work and several new locations have been made.

In Wallburg township, near Blevins there will be five vats to take care of the live stock in that section.

H. B. Aldridge, who has had charge of the Howard county eradication program in Howard county will move to Hope within the next few days to direct the campaign here.

It is stated that most of the people of Hempstead county are ready for the work and are very desirous of getting through with the dipping in order that the quarantine may be lifted in the county. Especially is this true of the upper part of the county. The people of the northern part of Hempstead have not given any trouble to the officers watching the quarantine line, but are anxious to have their county freed in order that they may have free access to Howard county with any live stock they may have.

A complete list of those who are to assist Mr. Aldridge in the work in Hempstead county has not been made public. It is understood that each man employed by him will have a certain number of vats in charge and will visit them regularly on dipping days which will be 14 days apart.

Full Crew Law In Supreme Court

Argued by State Representative and Missouri Pacific Attorneys

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Arkansas "full crew" law regulating the size of crews on trains and in switching operations was argued and defended before the Supreme Court Tuesday by attorneys for the Missouri Pacific railroad and the state in arguments on an appeal case.

Edward J. White for the railroad contended the law was an invalid exercise of the police power of the state, explaining that standard freight and switching crews upon all lines were one less brakeman and one less switchman than required by the Arkansas law.

Compliance with the statute would entail on the Missouri Pacific an outlay of approximately $600,000 a year and would cost all railroads in the state about $1,000,000 a year. White said, adding that the law contributed in no way to the efficiency or safety in operation of the railroad.

The federal court of the Western District of Arkansas dismissed the railroad's complaint and Donald H. Richberg, representing the state of Arkansas, insisted that the case should be thrown out of court.

He said the federal courts had no jurisdiction to enjoin state officers from enforcing state laws which had been held constitutional. The railroad, he said, should have gone into state courts and if there denied its constitutional right could have appealed to the Supreme Court.

Richberg denied there was an arbitrary exercise of police power and insisted that as Congress had not legislated to regulate the size of crews, the state acted fairly within its right.

Gravel Road Ridges Made By Old Tires

PULLMAN, Wash.—(AP)—"Washboard" highways—gravel roads that become corrugated—have been found products of high pressure tires and high speeds.

Tests of the engineering experiment station at Washington State college indicate that balloon tires and shock absorbers on automobiles prevented formation of the ridges.

It was found that a car with high pressure tires and no shock absorbers produced the "washboard" effect in 36 trips over a dry gravel road at 40 miles an hour and in 100 trips at 25 miles an hour.

Jess Glasscoe Case Expected To Reach End Wednesday

Arguments In Redwater Abduction Case Soon To Close

ACCUSED IS SILENT

Bosom Friend For Past Six Years Testifies Against Him

NEW BOSTON, Tex.—(AP)—The fate of Jess Glasscoe, on trial for robbery with firearms in connection with the kidnaping and shooting of R. W. Hanks, Redwater, Texas, banker is expected to rest with the Bowls county jury late Wednesday afternoon.

The state is asking the death penalty while the defense pleads for leniency on the grounds that Glasscoe was betrayed by his former friends.

The state offered more than a dozen witnesses in rebuttal testimony. Arguments in the case began early Wednesday and it is believed that Glasscoe's fate will rest with the jury in the late afternoon. Judge George W. Johnson prepared his charge Tuesday night.

Defendant Shows Strain Showing plainly on his pale, drawn face the strain of more than two days of testimony, the diminutive defendant sat with his attorneys, O. B. Pirkey and Otto Atchley, and his pretty sister, Mrs. D. C. Hughes, to listen to witnesses after witnesses relate incidents and circumstances linking him with the kidnaping of the 57-year-old banker.

Although plainly showing his weariness, Glasscoe wore the same stern expression which has characterized him through the entire trial as he heard his companion and friend for more than six years, Roy "Speck" Towles, tell a story from the witness stand which links him at least circumstantially with the crime for which the state is demanding the extreme penalty.

Mutilated Body of School Girl Found After Thirty Days

Sheep Herder Discovers Decapitated Corpse Wrapped In Bag

UNSEEN FOR MONTH

Slaying Recalls Marian Parker Murder By Hickman

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(AP)—The decapitated and mutilated body of 10-year-old Virginia Brooks of East San Diego, missing since February 11, was found wrapped in a burlap bag on Camp Kearney mesa Tuesday by a sheep herder.

The girl vanished while on the way to school and had been the object of a wide search.

Deputy Sheriff Blake Mason said she apparently had been dead about four weeks and that in addition to being decapitated both legs had been cut off.

The sheep herder said the body had not been where it was found more than 24 hours as he was in that vicinity Monday and would have noticed it. The mesa is about 15 miles north of San Diego.

Authorities were making a careful search to determine whether the body had been brought to the place in an automobile.

A neighbor said he had seen an elderly man, described as a "hermit," take the girl to her school on the outskirts of the city several days preceding her disappearance, but no one seems to have seen her after she left home the morning she disappeared.

A possible clue was given to the sheriff by a taxicab driver who brought in a hat partially identified as being worn by the girl. The cab driver told the sheriff that two weeks ago he had as passengers a man and a girl wrapped in a cloak.

The man ordered him to drive to an address, the driver said, but three blocks before the address was reached the man ordered the cab stopped and he and the girl got out. The next morning, the chauffeur said, he found the hat on the floor of the cab.

This conflicted somewhat with the estimate the girl had been dead about four weeks.

The disappearance and death of the Brooks girl recalled the slaying in Los Angeles in 1927 of Marian Parker, 12-year-old daughter of a banker, by William Edward Hickman. Hickman was later executed at San Quentin.

Teachers at Virginia's school after the slaying might have been carried away while searching for flower specimens for her school work.

Yegg Caught Trying to Loot Safe

Men Summoned by Night Watchman Capture Burglar

CABOT—While Nightwatchman Little was making his rounds Tuesday night, he noticed that the pilot light turned off in front of the safe at the Ramsey Motor company garage and heard pounding inside.

Little rallied a posse, including the owner, John Ramsey, and charged the office. They found a hole drilled out of the door of the safe near the dial but the burglar had not finished his job.

The posse made a hurried search of the garage and found the burglar hiding behind a row of shelves. He showed fight but was subdued by a blow on the head.

The burglar said his name was Jones and that his home is in Ohio. He had tapped the cash register for a few dollars before starting on the safe. He was locked up in the town jail and will be given a preliminary hearing in a justice court Wednesday.

Abyssinian Talks To Local Negroes

Oxford Graduate Will Speak Again at Hope Negro High School

Hope Negro High School heard an address on "East Africans" delivered Tuesday night by the Rev. C. F. Cheek, D. D., an Abyssinian minister who claims to be the first negro graduate of Oxford university, England. He will speak again Wednesday night.

Dr. Cheek spoke of Abyssinia as follows:

"The United States has lately made a commercial treaty with us—a treaty that will cause American lumbermen to enter a country where a septillion feet of lumber has lain untouched since prehistoric times when man himself lived in an imperfect state.

This treaty will open up untold mineral resources to the world and will bring a nation, the oldest of Christian civilization, into the world of America. Abyssinia is a land where the elephant meat and milk is relished; a land where girls remain unmarried until 24 and boys until 26; a land where death is rejoiced in and the dead are buried standing up."

Dr. Cheek speaks Wednesday night on the subject, "When Shall the Negroes Return to Africa?"

Arkansas Looks Good

THE Editor of The Star has just returned from a two-week trip through the East. Any Arkansawyer coming home from other sections at this time is bound to feel renewed confidence in his own state and city.

There is a deep gulf between the condition of the agricultural communities and the condition of industrial centers as we find them today. The difference is physical, and it is psychological.

We had the idea before leaving on our trip that the 1929-30 depression was more serious for the East than for us because it destroyed so much of the fundamental wealth of the industrial sections. It cut the value of their stocks and other "intangibles" in half. No such calamity occurred this time in the South. For we had taken our losses with the decline in cotton and farm values in 1920-21.

Any survey of business in the East must confirm this view.

There is abundant evidence that current business has touched bottom and is slowly recovering—but in two respects that section is operating under a great handicap. It will take several years to repair the losses sustained in one mad session on the Stock Exchange; and these losses are a physical fact. It will take almost as long to forget the sting of this defeat.

Psychologically, the East is operating under a great burden. Its people are not yet tired of talking about a calamity that is a year and a half old. Yet the people of the South and Southwest, some of whom are still paying off indebtedness that was incurred in the great land crash of ten years ago, are optimistic.

An amusing thing for the Arkansas traveler is the nation's reaction to the huge publicity given this state during the Red Cross relief campaign in the winter. Everyone is interested in us—at first with a touch of sympathy; but when you have explained just who the Red Cross actually helped in Arkansas, their sympathy turns to understanding, and they become acutely conscious of their own bread-lines.

There never has been a time in the history of modern America when mention of trouble found so many understanding ears. We had rather expected to find that the unfavorable publicity surrounding the drought relief campaign had hurt the commercial prospects of Arkansas—but we can not honestly say that it has. People are talking about us, but the minute they come into collision with an Arkansas traveler they are put on the defense. We are relatively better off than most of the East, which is admitted in the face of their year-round bread-lines.

With the drought and low-priced farm commodities, we lost heavily on the 1930 crop. But all we have actually lost is on current operations. We have no heavy capital losses to write off, as the East has for we took ours in 1920-21.

New optimism reaches the South with every planting-time. It is here today. People like to be at work. They like to know that they are contributing their share to the world's useful activity. And this spring we may be glad to know that all America is slowly reviving from a long depression—a revival which our own section will be leading.

Turning To Newspapers

WITH the business world upset by rapid changes in distribution methods, personnel and policies, as the result of declining sales volume, distributing connections of years standing are being overthrown in the search for more efficient and effective distribution of goods. Advertising, as a result, has been upset. Many manufacturers have cut their advertising expenditures in order to save the cost while others have adopted erratic, short-lived campaigns in a frantic effort to solve new problems.

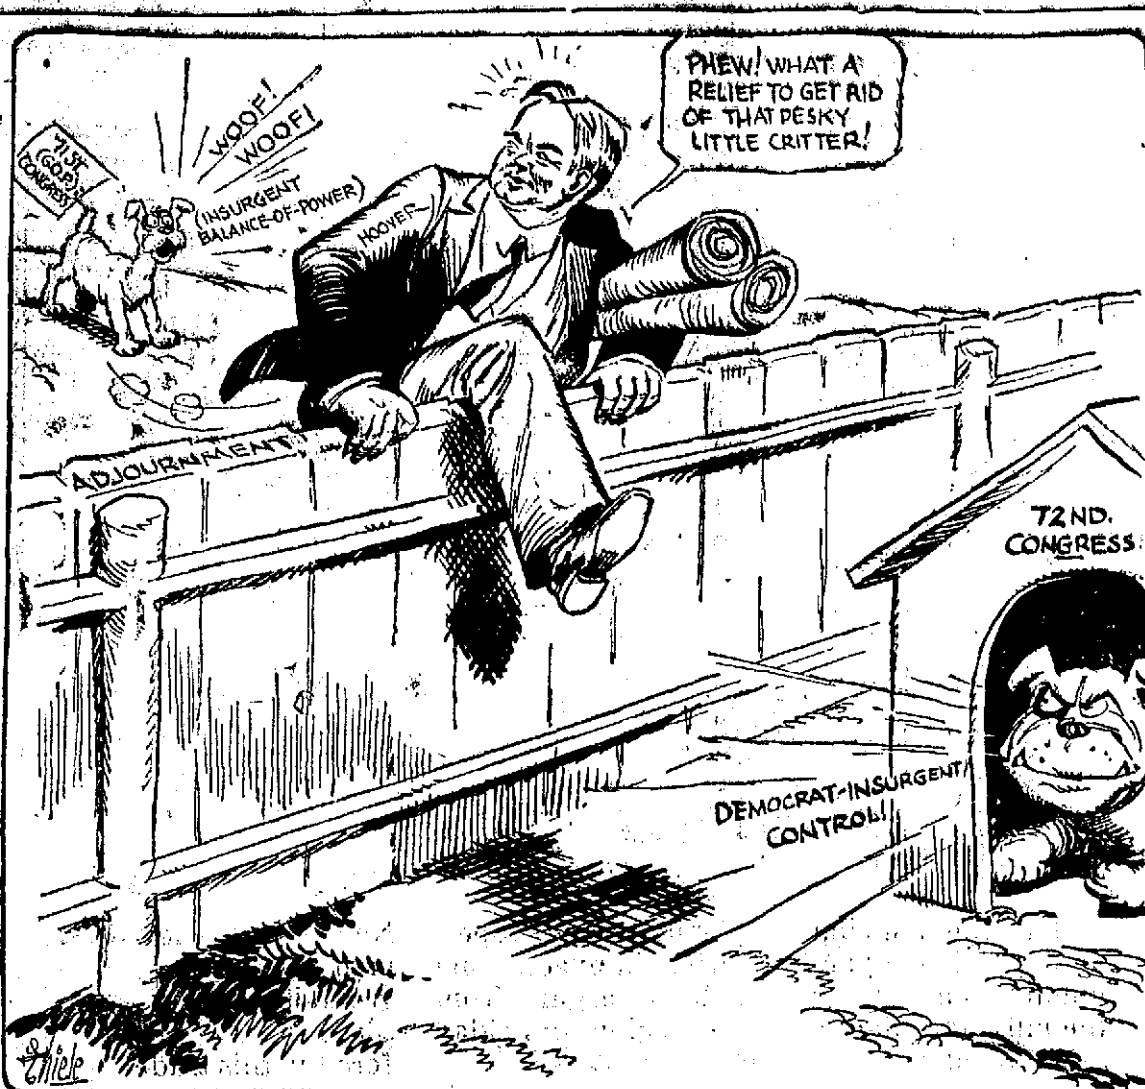

It is gratifying to daily newspaper publishers to note that questionable advertising on many freak schemes is being discontinued and the use of newspapers increased. The retail distributor must be pleased now, as his is the most effective sales channel. And the retailer naturally appreciates advertising directed to customers in his own area through the use of the local newspaper. The retailer is beginning to look with disfavor upon midnight banjo solos over the radio, colored pictures in national magazines and other far away and expensive mediums which he is forced to pay for, without the real, actual local sales stimulant he is supposed to be getting for his money.—The Rogers Daily News.

Perfect Tailor-Made Man Is Discovered

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—The perfect tailor-made man has been discovered. He is Jim Phillips, 22, elevator operator, and corresponds size for size with the measurements recently announced by a national tailors association as those of the "perfect" man.

EASILY TIRED, WEAK, NERVOUS

"I Took Cardui, It Built Me Up and I Felt Like New," Says This Lady.

Clarksville, Tenn.—"When I was a girl at home, my health wasn't very good," writes Mrs. Della Pentecost, of 945 Charlotte Street, this city. "I suffered quite a bit from pains in my side and back. My mother thought I ought to take a tonic, and knowing Cardui was good, I decided on that. Just two bottles cleared up my skin and eased the pain, and I felt much better."

"After I was married, I was weak and run-down, and at times very nervous. I would get tired so easily, and did not feel like doing my work. I took Cardui again, two bottles, and it built me up and I felt like new. I am glad to recommend it as a reliable medicine."

If you are run-down, nervous, or suffer every month, take Cardui, a purely vegetable reconstructive medicine of long established value. Experience of several generations has shown that Cardui helps women to health. Get a bottle of Cardui, today, and try it in your case.

Dear Sirs:

You have my sincere good wishes and commendation in your advertising campaign against the disgusting practice of "spit-tipping" cigars.

I do not believe that the cigar smoking public has ever awakened to a realization of the existence of this disgusting and unhealthful practice. Your advertising campaign will, I hope, awaken them to this danger.

I am a public health officer, and as such I feel that I should commend you for the public service which your campaign renders. You may publish this letter, if you wish, with such aid as the use of my name may give you, in the furtherance of your campaign.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY GYPSY McBRIDE, 10-year-old typtist, goes to meet the boat on which ALAN CROSBY is returning from a year and a half in Paris. On the pier the girl sees a beautiful woman waving to Crosby. He identifies her as MRS. LANGLEY, a ship's acquaintance. Two nights later Crosby breaks an engagement with Gypsy, explaining he is spending the evening with business associates. The girl goes to the theater alone and encounters Crosby with Mrs. Langley in the after-theater crowd. There is a scene. Mrs. Langley drives away in her car and Gypsy and Crosby go home to a cab, quarreling. Next day at the office Gypsy is offered a promotion but she is too unhappy to be interested. She takes a dictation test from Mr. Reynolds, her new superior. Later she hurries home, determined to apologize to Crosby, and meets him in the hallway. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

"What I mean to say is it was just kid stuff," Alan was saying. "Schoolboy and schoolgirl affairs. You feel that way about it too, don't you?"

Obviously the strain had been relieved. Crosby was smiling, speaking with animation now. The girl tried to play the part. "Of course, Alan. I know it was just kid stuff." "Yes, but we had great times. I'll never forget them. I've got to settle down to work now. Work hard. That's one reason I'm moving away from Mrs. O'Hare's." A pain like a knife thrust cut Gypsy's heart. Was it all a nightmare? Was she really hearing these words? Crosby's face had become a cloudy blur. "Where are you going?" she asked uncertainly. "East Twenty-third Street. I've got a room over there that isn't much but it will do. Moving in with another fellow from the office." Crosby, thus launched on a son of a gun, continued. "Mrs. Langley's going to introduce me to a lot of people who can help me. People who have influence. That's what I take to get ahead in New York. She's been great to me. Gypsy. Naturally you can see how I felt last night! But don't worry about that now—everything's all right. I'm going to see her tonight." By clinging with both icy hands to the edge of the seat Gypsy found she could endure the pain. "Tell me about her," she said. A shade of embarrassment crossed the young man's face. "I'd have told you before," he said, "only I didn't know just how you'd feel. She's wonderful, Gypsy. Met her two months ago in Paris. You see she's interested in art. She's got money and could spend all her time having a good time, but instead she likes to help art students and young musicians. She's the one who really got me my job at Thomas's. I'm going to do a sketch of her. If you only knew her, Gypsy, you'd understand how wonderful she is." "Are you—in love with her?" Crosby shrugged his shoulders. "What if I was?" he asked. "She's got everything and I haven't a cent." "But she must care for you Alan!" He smiled. "Thanks for the vote of confidence. Well—really I've got to dash along." He glanced at his watch. "Twenty minutes late already. Are you going up the

More than 73,000 miles in a New Ford

THE substantial worth of the new Ford is reflected in its good performance, economy and reliability. Its stamina and endurance are particularly apparent in sections where bad roads and severe weather put a heavy extra burden on the automobile.

In less than a year a new Ford Tudor Sedan was driven more than seventy-three thousand miles over a difficult route. The operating cost per mile was very low and practically the only expense for repairs was for new piston rings and a new bearing for the generator.

The car carried an average load of 1200 pounds of mail and was driven 250 miles daily. "The Ford has never failed to go when I was ready," writes one of the three mail carriers operating the car. "The starter did the trick last winter even at 34 degrees below zero. The gas runs about 20 miles per gallon. At times I pull a trailer whenever I have a bulky load."

Many other Ford owners report the same satisfactory performance. Every part has been made to endure—to serve you faithfully and well for many thousands of miles.

LOW PRICES OF FORD CARS $430 to $630

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON—The call for a meeting of the Democratic national committee in a non-campaign year is a most unusual thing in politics.

The committee gets such powers from the quadrennial national convention, whose last action was to pass a resolution empowering the committee to fill any vacancies that may occur on the party ticket and to call a meeting to choose the place of the next convention. Each state, territory and possession and the District of Columbia is represented by a committeeman and a committeewoman, chosen by party state conventions.

The body has to use its own judgment as to the extent of its powers and while it can discuss policies and make recommendations, the party platform is not written before the convention, then by a special committee. Between campaigns its main job usually is to raise money.

During campaigns, after breaking temporarily into activity as a group, most of its members work in their own states, keeping in touch with national headquarters where a few usually stay and work, occasionally drifting in with plans, pleas for funds from the national campaign chest and rosy predictions of victory in states where the party never had a chance.

Chairman Runs Campaign

The chairman at all times is the "big shot" of the committee. He supervises all plans, raises the money, picks an executive committee from the national committee to function at headquarters during campaigns and consulting with all who come in from the country. Or, like John J. Raskob, he may call a committee meeting more than a year before the convention to discuss policies and finances.

Major John S. Cohen of the Atlanta Journal is the most conspicuous and popular of the southern committeemen, an able and active party man whose opinions carry weight. Colonel Robert

Botany Experiment to Take 1,000 Years

ATHENS, O.—(U.P.)—Ohio University botany students in 1931 will learn the results of an experiment made by students in 1931.

The experiment was performed to determine how long seeds will retain their germination power. A row of 40 bottles, each containing 300 seeds, were buried on the university campus. One bottle will be dug up and the seeds tested each 25 years for the next 1,000 years.

The 40 species of seeds were gathered in the vicinity of Ohio University. They were prepared in bottles with sand taken from a depth of two feet below their burial site. They were shaken and mixed with the sand and packed tightly in bottles.

Ewing of the New Orleans States, another publisher, is also active and influential.

The committee's grand old man—and the oldest in point of service—is an ex-newspaper publisher, Norman Mack of Buffalo. He has always been an important party figure, as far back as the Bryan campaign of 1896. He went on the committee in 1900 and was national chairman in the 1908 campaign. Always one of the inner circle, he usually keeps on intimate terms with all factions. He has been in politics all his life and was one of the first and strongest Al Smith men.

Hague is Vice Chairman

Frank Hague of New Jersey is the mayor and Democratic boss of Jersey City. He is a vice chairman of the committee and usually co-operates with the New York group of politicians. Another first-rate politician with a large following is Michael Ig'e of Illinois, who succeeded George Brennan on the committee and whose position is more important since the Democratic senatorial victory in Illinois last fall.

Charles A. Greatouse of Indiana, committee secretary, succeeded Tom Taggart after the latter's death and has been one of the dominant working group. He has a large printing firm in Indianapolis. J. Bruce Kremer of Montana is always an important figure at a committee meeting, another of the old-timers who knows everyone and has a gift for working smoothly and amiably with them all.

Former Governor Arthur F. Mullen of Omaha is always in the picture, after long service, despite the fact that Nebraska doesn't mean much to Democrats in presidential years. Former Governor Harry Flood Byrd is the member from Virginia. He is a vice chairman of the committee and is politically allied with Senator Carter Glass.

Other members who have a real voice in party councils are Vice Chairman Scott Ferris of Oklahoma, and Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge, Mass.

Flick of Tongue Answers Question

TERRYVILLE, Conn.—(U.P.)—Court procedure in the justice court of Terryville isn't to be held up by a little thing like chemical analysis of liquor.

When Mrs. Lottie Czakowski was arraigned on a charge of bootlegging, a bottle of evidence was introduced. "Is it liquor?" asked Justice of the Peace William Tuttle.

Grand Juror A. J. Hill, who used to be a druggist and therefore should be an authority, poured a few drops on the palm of his hand and licked it with his tongue.

"It is," he informed the court.

excessive use of weight-gaining foods alone might do more harm than good. This general menu for a day should be kept in mind.

Breakfast—Fruit, cereal with sugar and cream, eggs, toast or other bread stuff with butter, milk or coffee.

brought in. Mid-morning and mid-afternoon lunches are an easy way to increase the food intake. A glass of milk or egg nog just before going to bed is often effective.

However, in the zeal to add fat and carbohydrates to one's diet care must be taken to prevent stomach upsets. One of the safest ways to get extra fat is in the seasoning of vegetables, serving cream with the breakfast cereal, using desserts which combine cream with fruit, and using extra bread and butter. Milk and eggs are fattening and, if plenty of fresh vegetables and fruits are used, can be included in a gaining diet in abundance. A quart of milk a day in place of the usual pint for an adult, an extra egg, salted nuts, a piece of candy after luncheon or dinner, an extra pat of butter at each meal, these together with larger proportions of food generally will bring about an appreciable gain in weight for the too-thin person.

"Men need have little fear of revolutionary changes in their mode of dressing," contends E. D. Carey, Canton, president. "Twenty years from now they will be wearing practically the same type of suits."

"As for the attempt to make shorts go over for street wear, that's hopeless," he continued. "The more men wear, the better they look, and they know it."

Mercy Shown Aged Man

SEATTLE—(U.P.)—When a man has passed his allotted three score years and ten with a clean record, he is entitled to consideration, according to Federal Judge Jeremiah Neterer, who suspended sentence for Joseph Burke, 73, who pleaded guilty to operating a still. Burke testified that he was running the still for another man and had accepted the job because he was "hard up."

LONDON—(U.P.)—A courtmartial found Lance-Sergeant Arthur Bob Smith, who had been in charge of the garrison postoffice at Woolwich, guilty of keeping 18 cents paid him for two stamps and voted out this penalty: Reduced to the ranks; sentenced to 28 days hard labor and discharged from the army with ignominy.

Slayer Convicted, Given Life Term

Trial of L. E. Keith at Harrisburg Completed in One Day

HARRISBURG—Trial of L. E. Keith, charged with slaying E. Bailey, was completed here in one day and Keith was sentenced to life imprisonment Tuesday afternoon after a jury had convicted him of first degree murder. The jury deliberated 30 minutes.

shot Bailey to death with a shotgun in January. Bailey was renting a one-room cabin from Keith and was to have paid $25 rent for it. Bailey had paid but $4 and when Keith went to the cabin one night to collect the amount due him the two quarreled.

Witnesses said Bailey ordered Keith out and the latter declared he and a companion were going to remain all night in the one-room cabin where Keith, his wife and a nephew, Johnny Wicker, lived.

The slaying of Dave Wilbanks, which will be reviewed Monday in the trial of his brother, George, for first degree murder, is alleged to have occurred near Pleasant Home in Point county last November. George Wilbanks is alleged to have beaten his brother to death with a heavy club during a drunken quarrel at Dave Wilbanks' home. The mother of the two men, and the widow of the slain man will be state witnesses in the case, which was postponed from Monday, because several important witnesses were absent.

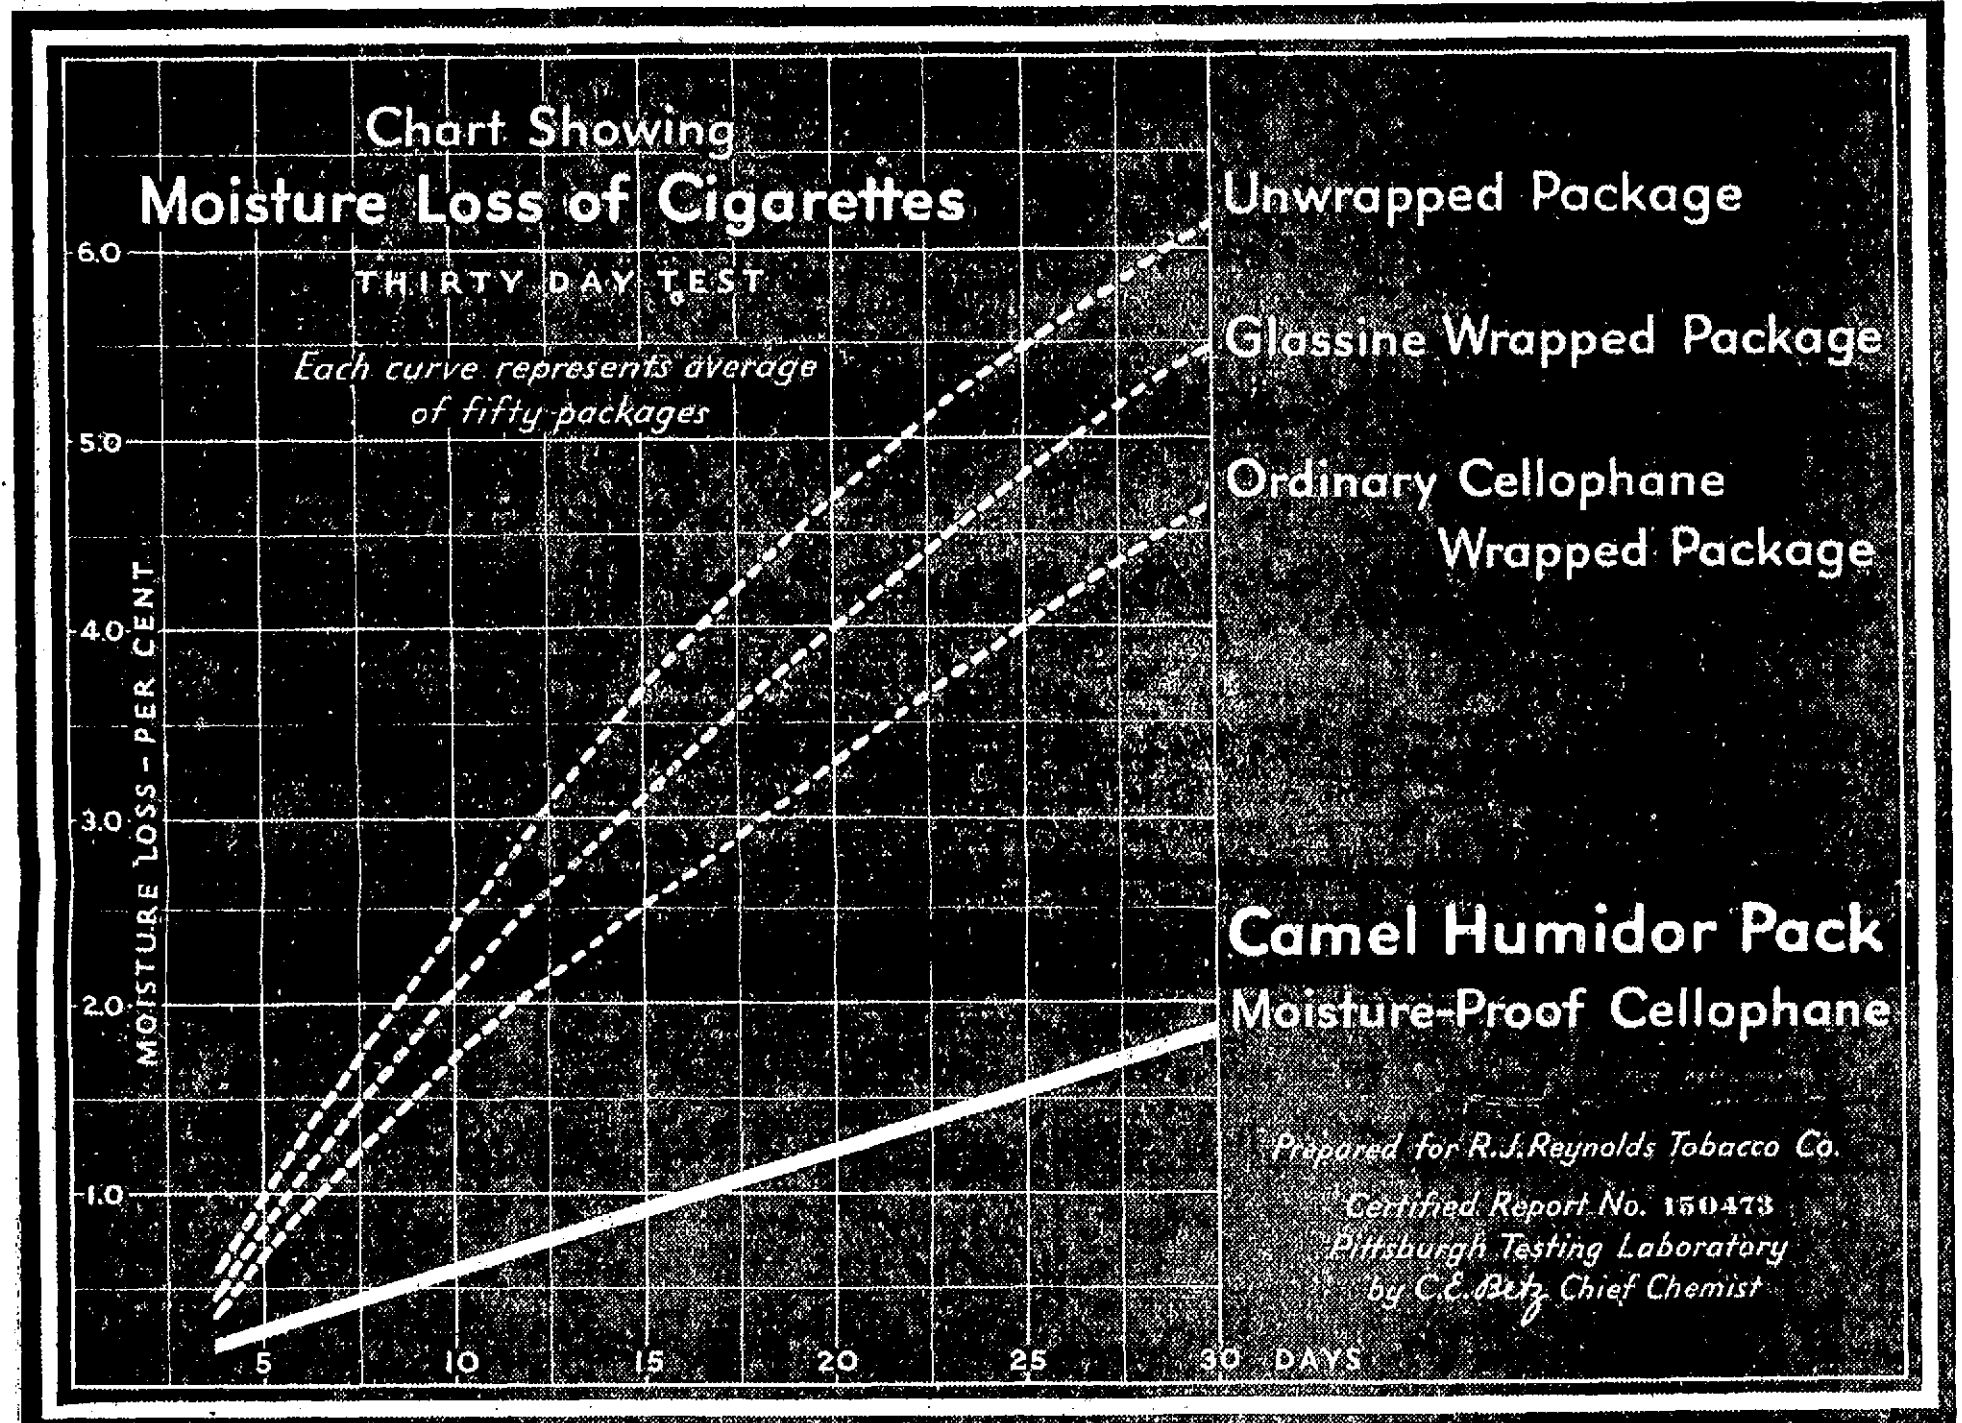

On completing the Wilbanks trial, which is expected to be handled in two days, the court probably will order the trial of Joe Fields and Red King for killing of Claude Patterson.

Salmon Canning Industry

PORTLAND, Ore.—(U.P.)—The canning of salmon on the Columbia river started in 1866 when 4000 cases, valued at $64,000 were canned. Since that time the output of the industry on the Columbia has been 23,960,667 cases valued at $203,588,350. The 1930 pack was 429,505 cases valued at $5,658,177.

SALEM, Ore.—(U.P.)—Unbelievable as it seems, farmers in a number of sections of the state claim that elk herds have grown to such sizes that an open season of one day per year should be established. Elk were extinct in Oregon less than 20 years ago and small herds were imported from Wyoming.

Menus For The Family

WITH fashions more "feminine" than they have been in years, many a woman is longing for a suggestion of a curve or a dimple. The person who has kept herself slender by means of restricted dieting can add her pounds as she will, but the girl who is just naturally too thin has a different problem. Underweight is seldom wholly a matter of diet, although the other causes usually go hand in hand with faulty food habits of some sort.

The person who is underweight from some obscure physical cause, mental conflict or overwork faces a different problem than the one who is thin because of faulty food habits.

The underweight who has no appetite should select foods which will stimulate a desire for food. Lack of appetite and small consumption of food usually goes with small stomach capacity. As the appetite increases and the amount of food eaten each meal increases the capacity of the stomach for food increases with the inevitable reaction of a natural desire for food. In other words the first thing the too-thin person must do is to actually stretch her stomach.

Maybe Sleep Is Needed

The person who is thin due to an inordinate amount of activity in proportion to his physical ability to hold food enough to maintain the activity and at the same time gain in weight must increase his sleep rest periods.

Then there are the underweights who have the appetite and the desire to gain but who do not eat the right foods. Milk, which is so valuable as a food, can be taken in many forms—hot, cold, with added cream or milk, sugar, or both, in cocoa and chocolate, in custards, sherbets, and ice creams and as buttermilk and is one of the easiest foods to add to the diet.

The following suggestions are specific and will form a working basis for those underweights whom the dietitian can help.

Fruits and fruit juices, succulent vegetables, yeast breads and meat broths stimulate the appetite. These foods make a perfect elimination, which is essential for good health before a gaining diet can be considered.

Plenty of good, wholesome food normally required by everybody must be supplied before adding the so-called "fattening" foods. The

THE whole country is talking about the throat-easy mildness and the prime freshness of Camel Cigarettes in the new Humidor Pack.

The above chart prepared by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory tells you why.

Please examine it carefully. It is an unfailing guide to cigarette selection and enjoyment.

As you can quickly see by the three upper curves on this interesting chart, cigarettes that lack the protection of the Humidor Pack lose their moisture rapidly from the day they are manufactured.

And day by day as this moisture disappears, the smoke from these cigarettes becomes harsher, hotter, more unkind to the smoker's throat.

Not so with Camels!

The Humidor Pack is moisture proof and sealed air-tight at every point. It protects the rich, flavorful aroma of the choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended.

Make these tests yourself

It is so easy to tell the difference between parched dry cigarettes and fresh prime Camels that it is no wonder everybody is reaching for a fresh cigarette today.

Your fingers identify stale, dried-out tobaccos at once. While a Camel is flexible and pliant.

Your ears can tell the difference too. For a dust-dry cigarette crackles under pressure.

But the real test is taste and there is simply no comparison between the rich mildness of a Camel and the hot, brackish smoke from a stale, dry cigarette.

Switch to Camels just for today then leave them tomorrow if you can.

CAMELS

Artificial heat in houses and apartments soon dries the moisture out of cigarettes wrapped the old fashioned way. It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.
